

First Dance of Season Proves Great Success

Over Four Hundred Guests Gather in Union Ball-Room

SUPPER SERVED

Aspler And Orchestra And "Diplomats" Provide Music And Entertainment

Over four hundred guests gathered last night at the Union House informal to introduce the social season in McGill. The music was supplied by Jessie Aspler and as usual he gave a good account of himself by keeping the dancers feet moving to soft rhythmic waltzes and crooning fox-trots. Mrs. A. S. Vaughan acted as chaperone for the evening.

As an added attraction last night, the "Diplomats" from the Beaux Arts Club sang several delightful songs to the accompaniment of the orchestra. The "Diplomats," it will be remembered made themselves famous when they sang several songs at the Pep Rally this year.

Members of every faculty were present last night. Hard-boiled sophomores were observed dancing with fair and delicate companions while many freshmen who made good use of their opportunity at the Conversant last Wednesday were seen dancing with freshettes. It was, however, noticed that none of the freshettes wore green garters nor placards as has been ordered by their upperclassmates.

The supper was served in two sittings. The Committee had previously made arrangements with the Union Cafeteria and as a result a fine supper was served at a nominal fee.

Although the ball-room was in no way decorated, it was excellently lighted. The floor was well waxed adding greatly to the enjoyment of the gliding dancers. The music room, and reading room were dimly lighted for those who cared to sit out.

The following were present:—

Discovery Made by Toronto Professor

Bible Book Find Ends Claim And Argument

According to an announcement made in Toronto Friday night, October 17, by Dr. S.A.A. Mercer, a new version of the Old Testament will soon be issued following his rewriting of the Book of Ecclesiastes. Last summer he discovered a hitherto unpublished version 200 years older than any manuscript known to exist, he said.

Dr. Mercer reports that his discovery shatters the claim which has stood for 20 years that European libraries contained the oldest manuscript of the book known to exist—Ethiopic of the 16th century. Dogmas of the Christian Church or the Synagogue will not be affected by his discovery, and Dr. Mercer. It will, however, be of vast importance to scholars and will clear up many vague portions of the Bible

Commission To Be Paid Those Selling McGilliad

At a meeting held yesterday, the Executive of the McGilliad decided to pay a commission of ten per cent to all those selling subscriptions during the campaign now being carried on. The campaign was officially started yesterday and will continue until October 31st.

All those who are interested in selling subscriptions on the above conditions, or those wishing to hand in their reports, please see a special committee sitting in the Daily office every day between 12 and 3 o'clock.

It was also announced by the Executive that a prize of ten dollars will be given to the one who sells the largest number of subscriptions, fifty being the minimum required.

The McGilliad Board urgently requests the student body to co-operate with the canvassers and help make this campaign a success, thus assuring the establishment of a much-needed university magazine.

Noted Minister To Preach Here

Secretary Of Fellowship In City to Address Students

ON SUNDAY NIGHT

Gospel Testimony Hall Loaned For Religious Function

Mr. F. Noel Palmer, Secretary of the Canadian Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship will be the feature of a service to be held in the Gospel Testimony Hall, at Union and Sherbrooke Streets tomorrow evening at 7:30 o'clock.

Six feet six inches in height, Mr. Palmer is a man of more than usual strength. That his personality is even more striking than his stature can be testified by the enthusiasm of the "fortunate fifty" who heard him speak in the Union last year.

It was at the war that Mr. Palmer decided that in Christianity is to be found the essence of true and happy living. Accordingly he took orders in the Ministry at Oxford, where he was one of the founders of the Intercollegiate Christian Union. He has had much experience with students, both at the war, and in England and Canada.

At their annual conference, held in London, Ontario, last September, Mr. Palmer was given the General Secretaryship of the Canadian Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship. Previous to this appointment, he lived and worked in Toronto.

Mr. Palmer is well known, and it is reported that a large number of students have signified their intention of being present at the service. The Gospel Testimony Hall, which is opposite the R.V.C., was kindly loaned for the occasion.

Band Performs At Rugby Game Today

Stronger Than Usual This Year Is Report Made

The Queen's-McGill rugby game today will be enhanced by the attendance of the McGill Band, in full strength and excellent shape under the leadership of Bandmaster R. A. Sanction. Leaving the Union about two p.m., the band, dressed in the usual uniforms will march to the Stadium where they will assist the rosters section in supporting the home team by playing famous marches and McGill songs.

The Band is stronger in most departments than usual this year and it is expected by Bandmaster Sanction to do ample credit to itself, though it is still weak in the trumpet and clarinet sections. This could be remedied by the appearance of those who might feel inclined to spare a little of their time to this important part of student support.

which have led to many volumes of theological writings.

Dr. Mercer, who is professor of Semitic Languages and Egyptology at Trinity College, has just returned from Abyssinia, where Christianity was introduced in the fourth century. Laborious search of records uncovered the manuscript which Littman, eminent German scholar, declared 20 years ago did not exist.

Nursery Rhymes Broadcast Over Provincial Hour

PLAYS RECORDS

Series of Reproductions of Different Types of Music Made

Ba Ba Blacksheep, Little Bo Peep, Pop Goes the Weasel, and other childhood favorites were heard again last night during the broadcast of an address by Dr. Douglas Clark, Dean of the Faculty of Music. This address was arranged as part of the Provincial Radio Hour and was concerned mainly with a discussion of a system of musical education for children which is being arranged in co-operation with the department of extramural relations.

The attention of the department to the neglect of musical education in Quebec was first directed by the Quebec Womens Institute. Accordingly, a series of records have been prepared by the Faculty of Music which will be under the care of the institute in the different local centres and which may be borrowed by interested school authorities.

Up to the present time, three series of records have been prepared. These are accompaniments for physical exercises, songs, and general music. They have been graded to suit the ages of the pupils, so that a young child may not be forced to attempt to appreciate a piece of music which it cannot possibly understand. Learning simpler pieces first the child gradually develops an appreciation for more and more difficult scores.

The system of education by gramophone records will be extended to other fields than that of music. A series of lectures on Literature and Science are in the course of preparation and it has also been suggested that the system be extended to take in subjects of such general interest as, for instance, the tariff question.

Dr. Clark then spoke of the importance of developing an appreciation for music in children. If the children of to-day become musically minded they will form a musically minded generation of to-morrow he said, in effect.

He then proceeded to play selected (Continued on page four)

Plan New Chair For Cambridge

To Study Industrial Relations At Ancient University

"The action of the generous donor who has provided the funds to establish a chair of industrial relations at Cambridge, one of Great Britain's oldest universities, was apparently influenced by the belief that the workers must contribute to a greater extent and more effectively to the management of industry," writes Bernard Rose, K.C., D.C.L., in the current issue of "The Labour World".

The endowment is to be concerned with conditions of employment and the relations between the employer and the employed. A prominent English weekly deplors the fact that such chairs have not been established at all universities. Those interested in the industrial welfare of their country will agree with this sentiment, especially in the case of Canada, ranking as she does among the greatest producing nations of the world.

"McGill University, the University of Montreal, the University of Toronto and Queen's," continues Mr. Rose, "are institutions which occupy a very high position in the educational world. They have, through the instruction furnished their graduates, contributed materially to the advance of science and the development and prosperity of their country. We have in our midst leading citizens, some university graduates and others self-educated, who are ideally fitted to deliver a course of lectures on this subject."

"Since Cambridge, although regarded as the more modern of the two ancient universities, but nevertheless with classical traditions going back through the centuries, has accepted the offer to establish such a chair, our principal Canadian universities should follow this excellent example."

Psychologist To Deliver Lecture On Personality

"PERSONALITY, Normal and Abnormal," is the subject of a lecture to be delivered by Dr. James W. Bridges, Professor of Abnormal Psychology at McGill, People's Forum tomorrow at 7:30. Dr. Bridges' lecture will show the wide ramifications of the subject, which is one of great interest nowadays.

Science has been appraising with interest Dr. Freud's remarkable studies in the realm of the sub-conscious mind ever since their publication, and the profound effect of his great contribution to science has extended beyond the limits of scientific research. Psychoanalysis, the study of the sub-conscious mind, more than any other development of scientific research, has a direct bearing in revealing the relationship of man to himself.

The People's Forum is held every Sunday night in the Church of the Messiah, Sherbrooke Street West and Simpson Street. At seven o'clock, Mr. George Brewer will give a half hour organ recital, followed immediately by the lecture.

Canadian Dental Assistants Meet

Hold Annual Convention in Windsor Hotel

FOURTH SESSION

Prominent Doctors From United States And Canada Address Meeting

During the last two days the program of the Canadian Dental Assistants Association Convention, which is being held at the Windsor Hotel has been pushed forward, two sessions of the convention having been held.

At the session held October 16th, the speakers were introduced by Dr. Campbell Morris, a member of the McGill Faculty of Dentistry. The first of these was Dr. William A. Gray of St. Paul Minnesota. Dr. Gray spoke on the three essential characteristics of the Dental Assistant which were he stated, cleanliness, honesty and good-health. He enlarged on each of these there explaining their significance to practicing dentists.

The other speaker at the session was Dr. Edwin M. Kent of Boston who spoke first on the psychological aspect of the Dentist's office. He then spoke of the division of the dental profession into two branches, administrative and operating, stressing the fact that the former was essentially the field of the assistant or associate, as he preferred to call him.

In the session held yesterday the speakers were introduced by Dr. Ross H. Cleveland, President of the Montreal Dental Club. Dr. James Loughry of Cleveland addressed the meeting briefly and he was followed by Dr. A. E. Webster, Dean Rose, K.C., D.C.L., in the current issue of "The Labour World".

Dr. Albert Irving of New York, in a brief speech, invited his hearers to visit his organization in New York, while a paper by Miss T. Ratner, read by Miss Lily Coleman concluded the meeting. The paper commended the valuable aid given the association since its inception four years ago by Dr. Eudore Dubou, Dean of the Dental Faculty of the University of Montreal and by Dr. George S. Cameron, Professor of Dentistry at McGill.

Keith S. Pitcairn, McGill graduate who received his B.A. degree in 1928, will go to Scotland to study educational methods. It was announced at the University today. He has been teaching at West Hill High School for the past two years and will leave shortly for Edinburgh University.

Mr. Pitcairn will make a special study in the psychology of education. Under the exchange system, two others have gone to Scotland, A.J.M.

Sellar Discusses Game on Radio

States Students Solid Behind Red Team

LINE UP GIVEN

Lack of Kicker Will be Felt By Red And White Players

Speaking on the sport situation in McGill in general and in the rugby team in particular, Bill Sellar, popular Arts '32 sport-writer last night gave a twenty minute radio address over station CFCF.

Speaking first of the intercollegiate tennis championships which are now being run off, the speaker stated that the McGill team has every chance of winning. He ran over the games which have been played during the past two days, pointing out the weak and strong points in each team.

Turning next to track he spoke in detail of the annual interfaculty meet run off yesterday. He described the meet in general and commented on the enthusiasm shown on every side.

Turning next to his main subject he spoke of the McGill—Queens game which is to take place in the stadium this afternoon. While the general feeling in Montreal was that McGill would make a poor showing general feeling in Montreal was that McGill students. They were solid this feeling did not prevail among behind the big Red team.

He then proceeded to give the line ups of the two teams, commenting briefly on each player. Even if McGill do not win, he said, they will do their very best. The McGill team has no kicker and this went against them at Toronto when they were opposed to Sinclair, one of the greatest kickers in the game. Carter is also a great kicker and will be a man to watch to-morrow.

Columbia Students Take Part in Riot

Police Threaten Students With Gas Bombs

New York, Oct. 17.—Fifteen hundred Columbia University students took part in a riotous demonstration Thursday night and were dispersed only after the police reserves threatened to hurl tear gas bombs among the students.

The riot was started after a cheering send-off of the football team for Hanover, N.H., for a game with Dartmouth.

During the ride on the subway in which several hundred students accompanied the team downtown, windows of the cars were broken and advertising cards were torn down. Meanwhile, others who remained at school demolished two hundred feet of the fence that surrounded the campus field, and tipped several cars in the bargain. On the attempt to set fire to one of these cars the police were called, and the students were put under control only after threatened with tear gas bombs.

Meds Capture Meet By Narrow Margin; Javelin Record Falls

Performances at Meet Are Good — Cummings Sets New Record in Javelin — Bourdeau Equals That in 220 Dash — Brown Wins Good Quarter — Standard of Competition Better Than That of Last Year.

Fair weather and good performances featured the Annual Interfaculty track meet held yesterday afternoon at the Stadium. Piling up a score of 41 points as the result of wins by Drew, Rahmanop, Cummings and Balmer the team representing Medicine carried off the high aggregate title for the meet. Arts made 38 points to annex second place, while Applied Science and Commerce followed with 32 and 27 respectively.

Performances throughout were better than average. In the javelin throw a new record was established when Vince Cummings threw the spear 154 ft. 4-7-8 ins. Another mark was equalled when Bourdeau dashed over the furlong in 22 2-5 secs. Other times and distances, while not up to record standard showed considerable improvement over those turned in last fall and all-in-all it should be a strengthened red team which will make the journey to Kingston next Thursday.

Typical Weather

The high hurdlers were called to their marks for the first event of the day shortly after 2.15. The weather was typical of mid-October, with more than a hint of rain in the air and now-and-again a passing glint of sunlight. Rain did begin to fall during the running of the three miles, later on in the afternoon, but the gentle drizzle had no effect on the competitors, although the three or four hundred spectators found it somewhat uncomfortable.

Drew and Baker got off their marks to a perfect start and for the first seven hurdles both men were in the air at the same time. However, Drew began to pull away and crossed the line with a yard to spare. Unfortunately, Drew had knocked down three of the barriers and was disqualified. His time of 15 3-5 would otherwise have been accepted as a record.

Sprinters Fast

In the "hundred" Bourdeau got away to a fast start and was never headed. The time of 10 2-5 was very fast considering the season of the year. In the 880 Bourne stepped away from the field to finish in the remarkable time of 2:02. At the end of the first lap he was clocked in .57 and appeared to be running easily. The pace began to tell in the second and the winner had to fight his way down the stretch. Ball, who has hitherto confined his efforts to the mile, ran a hardy race to take the second place, while Stewart annexed the show position.

Great Quarter

The 440 proved to be one of those events well worth waiting to see. Three men finished in what seemed to most of the spectators to be a dead heat. The judges placed Brown first, Hart second and Bourne third after one of the most exciting struggles in the history of Interfaculty competition.

Hart took the lead rounding the first curve but Bourne cut loose with a great sprint in the back-stretch taking the lead the 220 yard mark. They came around the bend neck and neck with Bourne still leading and Hart holding on grimly at his elbow. At this stage Brown was well back of the leaders and appeared to be definitely out of the race for first place. With twenty yards to go it still seemed as if Hart would win with Bourne second, but Brown came up from nowhere to win the honors by an inch at the tape. Hart finally got the better of Bourne.

Field Events

The outstanding field event of the afternoon was Cummings' remarkable javelin tossing which lead to the establishment of a new record inches better than that made last season by Walter Rahmanop. The discuss throw went to Bert Costello who repeated his form of last season to win with a heave of 107 ft. Rahmanop accounted for the shot-put with a heave of over thirty-five feet.

The jumping events were closely contested. Drew won both the high (Continued on page four)

Rifle Practice Slated Sunday

McGill Will Lead This Year Predicts President

For the purpose of electing a secretary and to give members their first practice of the season the McGill Rifle Association is holding a meeting at the Rifle range on Sunday, October 19, at which all those interested in outdoor rifle shooting are expected to attend. Members will meet in the Strathcona Hall at 8 a.m. and will proceed from there to the rifle range at Pointe Aux Trembles. The president, A. N. Harris, intends to get to the range as early as possible so that the members will have time for a good practice and be able to get home at an early hour in the afternoon.

Strenuous efforts by the Association, said the president, ought to result in first place for McGill this year, since in last year's competition the University of Manitoba only succeeded in gaining a two point lead on McGill, the results being 764 to 762.

Any members who are late and new men who wish to join the Association should go direct to the Rifle Range at Pointe Aux Trembles if they wish to take part in the first meeting, stated the president.

Record Attendance As All Men Turn Out

At a recent class meeting of the senior year in dentistry, at which there was a record attendance of 100 per cent an entirely new and original method of electing class officers was followed.

Co-Education

AWAY back before the turn of the century, when it was still a difficult matter for a woman to secure admission to any of the universities, there grew up, to take care of the educational needs of this newly emancipated section of the community, a group of women's colleges. These institutions accepted only female students. They were run and administered by women and their scholastic standing is not to be questioned even today.

After these colleges were firmly established and appeared to be turning out graduates who were a credit to them, the larger men's colleges began to consider the woman student seriously as a factor in the educational scheme of the country. Gradually women were admitted to all the old-established schools and thus co-education became a part of the educational structure. Our own University ceased to be a refuge for mere males in 1884 when the special Donalds course was endowed by Sir Donald Smith.

At once controversy arose as to the benefit of co-education and the echoes of the dispute continue to sound across a gap of more than half a century. At first women's colleges were upheld on the ground that educational prejudices then existing against the sex made it impossible for a woman to acquire an adequate education in any of the older male universities. But soon the prejudice wore away and the old argument lost its force and before the twentieth century dawned there was a large body of opinion to support the idea that co-education is a better scheme than anything that might be brought about by the segregation of the sexes. Even admitting the superiority of the educational standards of the women's schools, it became controversial whether the welfare of the young girl starting on the road to higher education was not in better hands at the large co-educational colleges.

Curiously enough the question turned on marriage. "Education should keep the minds of both young men and young women open to the idea of marriage. If it fails to do this there is something fundamentally wrong." This is the consensus of opinion of those who favour the idea of co-education and they claim that the segregation of females in women's colleges never has and never will keep the young girl's mind open to the idea of marriage. On the other hand there are parents who rather favor the idea of sending their daughters off to colleges where the standard of education is high and where they are well protected from the advances of males.

Since 1884 co-education has been the rule here at McGill and statistics show that the great majority of women graduates of this university marry. If educators are right in their contention that education should keep the young mind open to the idea of marriage, then co-education has been a success at McGill.

Wayward Youth

"HALF-baked" has always been the contemptuous verdict of world-wise older generations upon the ideas of idealistic youth. Fear for the safety of the old order has ever characterized those in control of affairs and has prompted a conscious or unconscious suspicion of the thoughts and doings of the younger ones. It is at about the college age that young men and women begin to detect the flaws in existing social and political and figuratively thumb their noses at the canons of art and literature. When the ideas of the younger generation "mature" it usually means that they have become stodgy and hence more acceptable to the "powers that be."

A university campus is an ideal place for ideas to germinate. That hackneyed expression about gaining more from contacts at college than from lectures contains more than a little truth. At college one can exchange opinions, "half-baked" or otherwise, with people of every shade of opinion, and have them subjected to friendly criticism. Private citizens can only mull over the ideas handed out to them by the newspapers or politicians.

Tolerance of distasteful opinions is prerequisite to advanced thought by members of a student body and in this respect McGill is fortunate. We have, for instance, the McGill Labour Club with the expressed hope in its constitution "that such evils as militarism, imperialism, race prejudice and the autocracies of private capitalism will be replaced by free industrial and political democracies, united on a basis of world international co-operation." And as yet there has been no hysterical cry of "Bolshevism" or "nest of sedition" raised, despite the fact that this group exists on the campus of a privately endowed university.

When one compares this attitude with the attitude of some other universities where even the idea of evolution can not be entertained it is felt that here we have at least some measure of freedom.

CORRESPONDENCE

Letters addressed to this column must be signed. The signature need not be for publication, in which case a pen-name should be used and the writer's own name added in such a position as to convey clearly that it is not meant to be printed. The signature is merely an indication of good faith to the editors.

Editor,
McGill Daily,
Dear Sir,

I was pained and surprised to read in your columns what I can only consider as a biased and unjustified attack upon me. As I instantly destroyed "Disgusted's" letter for fear that any of my younger children might see it, I am unable to answer point by point. In fact I was so shocked that I remember very little of the details except that the author thinks that three naked figures in suggestive postures are beautiful, and has the audacity to suggest that my mind and not his (or her) mind is corrupted. After such a shameless advocacy of obscenity and so brazen a display of immorality I can well believe all that I have heard of the vices of a certain section of the younger generation. I hope that there are not many like "Disgusted" at McGill.

Trusting that I shall not be assailed again in your columns,

I remain,
Yours truly,
Arts '11.

The Editor,
McGill Daily,
Dear Sir,

Extract from the McGill Handbook:
"The Athletic Board gives an athletic membership card to each student paying his fee (athletic fee) and this entitles the bearer to admission to all home games which are not open to the public, and the coupons which it contains may be exchanged without charge for rosters tickets for games which will be open to the public."

It would be interesting to receive an explanation from the athletic board as to why this regulation is not carried out to the letter. This is with reference to night football games.

Yours sincerely,
Commerce.

The Editor,
McGill Daily,
Dear Sir,

Surely the donors of the stucco in the hollow could not have known that McGill is a co-educational institution where the men like indecent statues too. Otherwise how could they have committed the tactless blunder of sending us three male figures. Anyway, the symbolism of the group is inconceivably wrong. Which sex bears most burdens in a young country? Perhaps the American Nation will correct its error by sending us a female figure a little later in the fall. There's a fine location for a couple of good-sized, daring aphorisms just outside the Law Faculty.

sure, be an interesting performance especially that part of it dealing with Shaw's youth and literary debut.

John Erskine, he of the "Private Life of Helen of Troy" has written the libretto to an opera composed by George Antheil (vide Ezra Pound). It's title is "Jack and the Beanstalk." Erskine's latest novel "Cinderella's Daughters" will appear shortly.

"24 Hours" by Louis Bromfield is being hailed as a masterpiece by sundry New York critics. I have read it in the serialized version and though I thought it a good novel it is far from being a masterpiece.

A very interesting and highly original experiment in literary criticism has just been performed in Russia. Every winter evening for a few years M. Toporoff, a schoolmaster in a small Siberian village read aloud to the assembled inhabitants the classics of various literatures and modern Russian works. The peasants, most of them illiterate were urged to express their candid opinions of the book being read. These opinions faithfully taken down by the schoolmaster have now been issued in bookform. Some of the opinions, especially of modern Russian Lyricists are untranslatable. The classics on the other hand come in for extended praise.

The whole scheme is indeed interesting both from the point of view of social psychology and the criticism of literature.

COLLEGE COMMENT

There have been great people ever since the human race began, setting certain standards of worth and accomplishment. A man has been called great because he leads a conquering army, another because he is a financial wizard, another because he has created something useful or beautiful, and still another because he has done something spectacular. Yet, when we try to analyze this shining quality, we find it very elusive and rather difficult to define.

Often men and women have been designated for honor apart from the mass when there is any number in the mass just as worthy, but in a different line. A conscientious school teacher never receives the adulation bestowed upon a daring aviator or a successful actor, though we can readily see that the teacher is just as deserving of the word "great" as any genius in literature or business world. A genius, not because he can do something out of the ordinary, is often placed upon the heights when he is merely gratifying the one or more ambitions which an inner force stimulates him to gratify. In many cases he is so successful in one line that he is a failure in everything else, thus missing true greatness and receiving only that which an emotional public is always ready to bestow for the glamorous and unusual. Therefore, it is almost absurd to call any man great for his work alone if that work is not accompanied by certain qualities of the soul that are the essence of greatness.

I find, after the study and contrasting of supposedly great men with great men, that sympathetic understanding of others combined with natural simplicity are the attributes of personality that make a man truly great no matter how common his vocation. Greatness is of the soul, he who would be great must find it there and not in a material world.

THE WAY OF CHEATING

"One-half of Yale undergraduates are guilty of cheating." Such is the startling announcement made by the Yale News. That the offense is not seriously regarded is another statement made. Yet the penalty is expulsion.

If the penalty is expulsion and yet one-half Yale undergraduates cheat, then something is wrong with enforcement. Something is also wrong with the attitude of students toward the offense.

Yet Yale is not so radically different from other universities in these respects. There are undoubtedly cheaters on every campus. Too many students and faculty members everywhere make examinations especially a matter of hide and seek.

But if character education is one of the main ends of education, as must be conceded, then this game cannot be lightly overlooked. Faculty members must first of all remove the temptations toward cheating.

That alone will not remove the evil. As long as there remains a desire toward dishonesty cheaters will cheat. It is asking too much of universities to remake the moral structure of young men and women. This problem goes back to the schools, churches, and homes.

Since the homes, in many instances, fail, since the churches reach but a minority, then the great burden rests with the schools. Particularly does it rest with the secondary schools where the boy or girl has reached a more definite ability to distinguish right and wrong.

Yet how many secondary schools provide any conscious influence toward character building, moral conduct, or ethical standards? No wonder cheaters will cheat.

PIPE COURSES

"I looked around the class . . . not one good looking man in the room . . . mobs of intelligent appearing women . . . a gray haired prof at the desk, reading a book. The chairs were uncomfortable . . . there were no rungs to put your feet on . . . the room was on the third floor . . . I dropped the course."

This quotation, taken from a recent issue of College Humor represents a prevalent attitude of many university students. Students, an alarming number of them, select courses for the vaguest reasons imaginable and not because they are interested in them or because they will be of benefit.

Many cases could be cited where a student has selected a course because his roommate was registered for it, because some of the brothers had taken the course last year and there were numerous papers in the fraternity file, because the professor instructing the course was "easy," or because the course came at a convenient hour and he could have his afternoons off if he enrolled.

During registration a commonly heard remark was, "tell me some pipe course." If someone volunteered suggestions in that direction the student probably enrolled for courses that are "pipes" and little else, courses he will make of no value whatever to him—either here in the university or following graduation. This is a situation that hurts only the student himself. Those who realized that the university offers a wealth of excellent courses from which they made a selection well worth their time and best efforts will get real dividends from their investment in education.

SLIDING THRU

One phrase that is perhaps too common with college students is "sliding through." Too many times have we heard an undergraduate say, "Well, I'm not worrying, I'll slide through that course."

It is not the fact that sliding through a course may be detrimental but the fact that the habit of just getting by is one that is easy to establish and difficult to break. You may lose little by "skimming" or "skipping" through a few college subjects but if this becomes a firmly established habit, the results are not hard to forecast.

College is only a stepping stone to the business and professional world but the habits that the student establishes while preparing for his life work may become so firmly ingrained in his nature that they influence his future. If it becomes second nature to slide through the more difficult portions of undergraduate life it is but natural for the student to take the easier path later.

He was heart broken and sad. All the human misery in the world seemed to be concentrated in his scrawny form. Tears found their way down his pinched cheeks from eyes that were both naive and blue. He tried to walk but he couldn't, his knees trembled so. The world's greatest inferiority complex was in his possession.

He had been deprived of the most petty of human liberties—he dared even call himself his own name now since they had given him another, many others in fact. They had changed his mode of dress, his manner of walking, he wasn't allowed to talk. Last year, before the gates of liberty had clanged behind him, he was on the crest of the wave. Every one was obsequious to him and he was king of his world. Now, instead of homage and awe, he was called the vilest of names and physical torture was his lot if he failed to submit. The outcast, reviled, sore in body, could only snivel weakly in his handkerchief.

A case, you say, for the Humane Society? A penitentiary number a sweet old lady would presently bring Jolles and ask him why he went wrong? Had he the proper environment or heredity, were they responsible? Was his Uncle Adolphus on his mother's side feeble minded or was it just the way he wore his ears?

Eminent scientists were called together in conference to puzzle out the identity of this pitiful creature. Whether the causes for his present state resulted from pseudocarp, pique or just plain pink toothbrush. They consult for hours, days flit by on wings, and still they question each other's theories. At the end of two weeks, a dozen weary yet triumphant savants rush from the laboratory. It won't be long now. They should in unison, "He is just a Freshman!"

Win Today Will Place McGill Back In Intercollegiate Title Race

Capacity Crowd Will Attend Big Football Game

Both Squads in Good Shape For Battle on Rain-Soaked Grid

COUPON NUMBER 3

Bill Lovering Lines up on Backfield—Will Provide Kicking Opposition

FIFTEEN thousand people, it is expected will pack the rain-soaked Molson Stadium this afternoon, when captain Doherty leads his red-shirted children warriors to battle against Queen's in the first "at home" for McGill in the intercollegiate series. A great battle is in the offing, with greater results hanging in the balance. Should the red team lose this afternoon, it will mean almost certain elimination from the championship race, while a win will place them right back in the thick of things.

Both squads are in good shape, and not badly depleted through injuries. Bill Lovering's return to the fold gives the redmen additional kicking strength, so badly needed, and solves the half-line problem that has been Major Forbes' big worry this season. Doherty, who was laid off for a few days with a bad cold, will be in harness this afternoon, ready to go 60 minutes, if necessary, and Hammond is in great shape. "Sailor" Swabey will complete a formidable backfield combination, that is sure to provide plenty of trouble for McKelvey, De Diana, and Ralph, the tri-color endmen.

Shag Improves Squad
Under the capable supervision of "Shag" Shaughnessy a remarkable improvement has been noted in the McGill line. Wilson, McTeer, Church, Chapman, and McMoran are all ready to flank Halpenny, who will be at the snapback post, and this bevy of heavyweights need not take a back seat to any other quartet in the game. Nevertheless it will be a tough ride all the way, with Bassemann, Hamlin, Nichol, and Stuart for opposition. It was Hamlin last year, who plunged Queen's to victory on the local grounds.

The tri-color have a fleet backfield in Carter, Davis, Gilmore, and Elliott, and one with a powerful booting offensive. Caldwell will bark the signals for the invaders, while Hastings will snap. McGill's supporters are confident, however, that the crafty Don Young will soon have his team holding the whip hand over their old-time foemen.

Queen's Will Use Kicking Strength
It is expected that Queen's will take advantage of their extraordinary kicking strength, and depend on an aerial attack, to tire the flashy McGill ball carriers, as Toronto did last week. Lovering's return, however, has minimized this advantage, while no better crew of tacklers could be found than, Urquhart, Chard, Graner, Young, Swabey, and Halpenny, who have made life miserable for so many ambitious ball carriers in past games.

Both squads are unusually confident of victory, and are not worried in any way about the condition of the field. Sixty minutes of flashy ball handling, crashing plunges, and lofty spirals are the attractions that have forced ticket manager Bud Veitch to have additional pasteboards procured to accommodate the band of enthusiasts who mean to be amongst those present.

Organized rooting will be conducted in the south stands, where seats may be had by producing coupon number three.

Co-Ed Sports

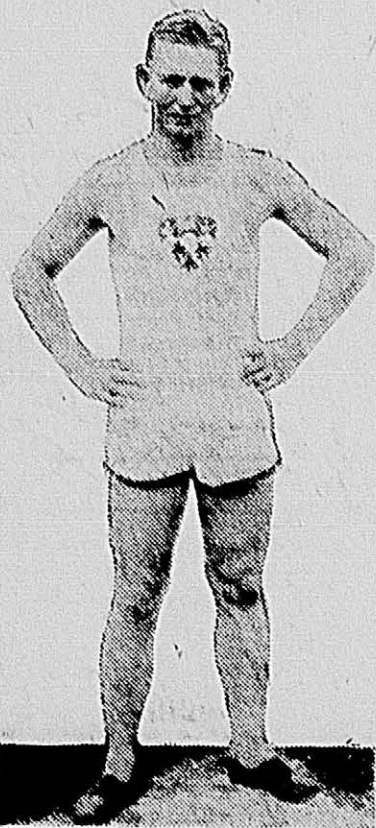

The M.W.S.A.A.

The McGill Women Student's Athletic Association wish to take this opportunity of welcoming all freshettes and of urging them to participate in the various realms of athletic activity which may attract them. Three clubs are sponsored by this association: The Rifle Club, The Ski Club, and The Badminton Club. The M.W.S.A.A. in itself offers several branches of sports and handles the various college teams. It is hoped that this will be a banner year in the annals of co-ed sport and it is the expressed wish of the mentioned clubs that this appeal for supporters will awaken whole-hearted response from those athletically inclined.

The Rifle Club hold weekly shoots at the Montreal High School range. Competitions are held during the season and prizes are awarded. The Dominion Cartridge Co. offer silver spoons and gold rings for high scores. Jean Campbell, the president, will be glad to give any information regarding the club.

The Ski Club handles more lines of sport than its name suggests. It is primarily an outing club offering the variety of activity in accordance with the season. During the winter, week-end excursions in the mountains feature on the club program

Students Capture Annual Golf Match

Defeat Professors 31 to 20 At Royal Montreal

PROFS STAND TREAT

By a score of 31 to 20 the students soundly defeated the professors in their annual golf match at the Royal Montreal Golf Club at Dixie yesterday morning. As a result the newly-donated Dr. R. J. Harrington Trophy will be held in the students name for the first year of its existence. The name of Bob Costello, student, who scored the low gross of the day at 50 will be engraved on the base, probably along with that of Dr. A. S. Lamb, Director of the Department of Physical Education, who took 81 for second place amongst the whole and first amongst the professors.

There were 45 professors and a like number of students in the annual match yesterday, and 45 professors paid for two dinners. The results might have been even more imperative if McGill's six best golfers had been competing at Dixie instead of in the intercollegiate at Mount Bruno. The victory is all the more noteworthy when it is remembered that the professors used to have it all their own way in the contest even within the last three years. Golf was then an old man's game, so it was said.

McGill Leading Intercollegiate Tennis Tourney

Red Team In Both Finals And Favored to Take Title Again

U. OF M. TIES U. OF T.

Intercollegiate Tennis Standing

McGill	8 points
U. of Toronto	6 points
U. of Montreal	6 points
Queen's	4 points
R.M.C.	1 point

By virtue of three more wins in the singles yesterday, and one in the doubles, the McGill intercollegiate tennis team added four more points to their four-point total, and qualified for the finals in both series. Their 8-point total places them in the lead in the standing, being two points ahead of each of the Universities of Toronto and Montreal, whose teams are tied for second place.

The red and white captain, Charlie Leslie, is the singles finalist, and favored to take the Queen's dark horse Sheppard today without extending himself unduly. This final win would mean two points, and it would place McGill in undisputed possession of the title for the second year in succession no matter how the doubles went. If Toronto should manage to take both the semi-finals and the finals of the doubles they would add only three points for a total of nine, to ten for McGill. In the same way, if U. of M. should manage to take both contests their possible total is only nine. However the local players have more than an even chance of taking both finals for a very decided win of the tournament.

Sheppard of Queen's Wins Twice
Sheppard of Queen's has been an outstanding figure in the two days of play, and especially yesterday when he came from behind in both his matches to defeat both Crain and Wilson of McGill. In the first match Crain took the first set 6-2, and for a while had a margin in the second, but Sheppard's staying power was greater and he took the third by a comfortable 6-1 score. In his match with Wilson he experienced his difficulty in the middle set, but again rallied in the third, and entered the tournament final.

It must be remembered, however, that Leslie has taken both Crain and Wilson by safe margins in elimination play, so although an exciting match may be looked forward to, a McGill win is also probable. Sheppard did meet defeat yesterday in the doubles, when he and Muir bowed to Bumbray and Hurtubise of U. of M., in another very close three-set match. This was one of three smart wins by the French students in yesterday's play on the college courts here, and it helped place them in a surprise tie with Toronto for second place.

Grandstand for Crowd Today
A large crowd was on hand yesterday both morning and afternoon to watch the undoubtedly first class tennis being displayed by the five college teams. Today temporary stands will be in position around the courts on which the finals will be played, but these will probably only begin to accommodate the crowd which will watch the final of one of the closest intercollegiate tournaments in recent years.

Soccer Squad in Action at R.M.C.

Meets Cadets in Intercollegiate Curtain Raiser

RESERVES PLAY

Both McGill Soccer teams will swing into action tomorrow, the seniors in a regular intercollegiate tussle with R.M.C. at Kingston, and the Reserves in a game with the Corinthians, a Sun Life aggregation.

The first stringers pulled out yesterday confident of a win, and when they line up against the cadets this morning they will, on paper at least, have the stronger team. Almost the same eleven men as composed the squad which defeated R.M.C. last year will be on hand, the only losses being Watt, Giovando, Harkness, and Fitzgerald. The goalie has been replaced by Ross who has proved himself a player of the very first calibre, and the backfield loss has in a large measure been made up by the return of Vin Helwig, veteran of six campaigns, to the McGill outfit.

R.M.C. Always Give Hard Battle
R.M.C. on the other hand are also fielding a strong outfit, having lost only two of their men. The cadets always give McGill one of the season's hardest battles, and the Redmen will have to be going all out if they are to humble the Limestone city aggregation.

In the second string game, McGill Reserves will be facing an outfit which gave the seniors a tough battle a week ago, finally bowing to defeat at the short end of a 2-1 score. The seconds, however, have been putting in some intense practice during the last week and the game should be close enough to provide plenty of thrills for the spectators. The two McGill teams will be made up as follows:—Firsts—Ross, Reece, Helwig, Violette, Estall, Owen Crabtree, Nolan, Mollot, Watson, Williams, Smart.
Seconds—Evelyn, Stobert, Zimmerman, Sparks, Peters, Minlon, MacInn, Rand, Carter, Gamble, Janikun, Budgen, Duder, Smith, Shute, Murray, Lynn.

The second string game is scheduled to kick-off at 2 sharp in the upper stadium.

Track Training Table On Monday

38 Men of Both Teams Assemble in Fieldhouse

Training table for track men begins on Monday evening at the field house at 8 p.m., when 38 members, and prospective members, of the Senior and Intermediate track teams will meet at the dinner table for a discussion of some of the points to be observed in preparation for the strenuous competitions next Friday and Monday.

It is probable that some supplementary trials may have to be run off in the early part of next week, particularly for places on the second team, where the results of yesterday's meet were, in the opinion of the coach, not conclusive.

The following 38 men are expected to report at the Stadium for training table on Monday evening at 8 sharp: Draw, Rahmanop, Bourne, Baker Bourdeau, Brown, E. E. Balmer, Hutchins, Wallace, Painter, Costello, Cummings, Hart, Barclay, Lochhead, Jacob, Calhoun, Young, Howlett, Weber, Cahon, Ward, MacKenzie, Cameron, Ball, Swartz, Stewart, Hunte, McMartin, Maughan, Burleson, Lilley, Cooper, Lushier, Whitcome, McGibbon, Nobbs.

ENGLISH RUGBY

The following men will play against M.A.A.A. at 2:15 this afternoon on the M.A.A.A. grounds, 4360 St. Catherine St. West. If you have all of your equipment, be at the grounds at 1:45. If you have not, then meet the manager at the Tennis Courts not later than 1:30.

McGill Captures Opening Round Of Golf Tourney

Defeats U. of T. by Two Point Margin At Mount Bruno Yesterday

FOURSOMES TODAY

Howard Webster scored a gross of 157 for 36 holes to take the individual intercollegiate golf championship in the tournament being held at Mount Bruno Country Club yesterday and today, and he led the McGill team to a two-point margin over University of Toronto, their nearest rivals, at the end of the individual round, with the foursomes being played this morning.

The six McGill players gathered 9 1/2 points to Toronto's 7 1/2, and Queen's the other contestant brought up the rear with a lone tally. The players went out in threes, one from each of the teams, and the points were scored two for low and one for second place. The local players took points in all six matches, with three wins, a draw, and two seconds.

Foursomes Today
Today's play will consist of foursomes in which all members of the teams will again compete, and with three points to be divided in every match. It would seem that Toronto must win all their remaining fixtures if they are to have a chance of first place. McGill can afford to drop one match and still retain a safe lead in the final, as Queen's on their showing yesterday are not conceded very much chance of adding further points. Besides containing the low gross player, the McGill sextet also had the two men tied for second at 163. These were John Marler and Leo Ryan, both of whom beat Jack Nash of Toronto, last year's individual champion, by one stroke. Bob Lee made the best Queen's effort with a 167, but this failed to place him in his match with Marler of McGill and Nash of Toronto. Results of the matches were as follows:—

tions from half a dozen of the records, interspersing them with brief remarks. The first was a series of nursery rhymes intended for the lowest grades. These included Little Bo Peep, Tom Tom the Piper's Son, Pop Goes the Weasel, and Ba Ba Black Sheep. The records were made more realistic by the introduction of various farmyard noises etc. The second was a series of children's melodies intended to give the pupil an idea of the part of different individual instruments. It included selections of cello with piano, oboe with piano and flute with piano.

The next two records were two examples of folk songs, one English and the other French Canadian. Folk songs, Dr. Clark explained form a very large section of the records. The next was an example of music for more advanced pupils and consisted of a solo rendering of "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth", with organ accompaniment.

Lastly, Dr. Clark played one of the more unusual records, the bells of St. Markarets, Westminster, with Harley Roper at the organ.

At the conclusion of these selections Dr. Clark stated that they merely represented a few of the many groups prepared. Full information concerning them might be obtained, he stated, from the Central Quebec Women's Institute at St. Anne de Bellevue.

Random Notes on Queens' Players

Harry Batstone:—The man who is now entering his second year as coach of the tricolor with whom he played for so long, first came to fame in Toronto in 1920-21, when he teamed with Lionel "Big Train" Conacher on the half line of the Argonauts. Batstone was known as the brains of the Argo team. The Batstone-Conacher pair was highly instrumental in taking the double blue through to the Dominion championship in 1921.

Harry proceeded next year to Queen's where he entered the Commerce course, in which he graduated in the fall of 1926 with excellent standing. At Queen's, along with Pep Leadley, Red McKelvey, and Bud Thomas, he formed the nucleus of the great machine which under the tutelage of Bill Hughes took four intercollegiate titles and three Dominion championships.

In the fall of 1926 Batstone re-entered Queen's in Medicine, in which faculty he is now in his fifth year, having taken honor standing in every year of his course. Eliminated from playing by the former four-year rule, he was last year appointed coach of the Queen's team, and he took them to the intercollegiate championship.

Those who know him well praise his quiet, unassuming nature. In addition to his football prowess, he has for some years ranked as the best second baseman in the Ontario Baseball Amateur Association, having starred with Oslers and the Bell Telephone team of Toronto. It is not at all exaggeration to say that Harry Lee Batstone will rank among Canadian athletic immortals.

His playing weight is only 148 pounds, and his height 5 feet, 8½ inches; he was never very fast, but he is acknowledged by all outside wings to be the hardest man to tackle in football. Batstone has set a standard for clean, gentlemanly sport on the gridiron.

Gib McKelvey, Flying wing:—This brother of the famous Red John is now in the fifth year of his medical course after securing his B.A. He is a stellar hockey player, and previous to his retirement from football during the duration of the four year rule, he was recognized as one of the most effective and scappiest secondary defencemen in the game.

Elliott, half back:—This man in his first year as a regular is the son of Chaucer Elliott, once famous as a Queen's Football player.

Howard Carter, halfback:—This stellar kicker is a product of Sarnia, Ontario, where he was a leading student in athletic and literary activities in the Collegiate Institute. Carter is also a basketball star, having played on last year's championship senior squad.

Nichol, inside wing:—This is the chap who put up such a game exhibition in the heavyweight boxing division in the intercollegiate assault in the McGill Union last year. He, too, is an excellent basketball player.

Basserman, inside wing:—A native of Montreal, and a former member of M.A.A. Juniors.

Hamlin, middle wing:—A Torontonian and former teacher in Winchester Public School there. He was for some years an extra-mural student at Queen's before entering intramurally. This is his second year as a regular on the senior team.

Red Gilmore, halfback:—A star half and place kick expert, he is a grad of Oakwood C.I., Toronto. It was rumored that an operation last spring would keep him from the football field, but his exhibition so far belies the statement.

Ian Gourlay, captain and outside wing:—A native of Kingston, who has gradually worked his way up to the seniors through the Juniors and Intermediates. He has taken a prominent part in undergraduate affairs and is now a candidate in the forthcoming elections for the presidency of the Alma Mater Society—the Students' Council of Queen's.
